

LIST OF BLACK VOTERS IN 1867 IN LANCASTER COUNTY, VA

Background Information:

After the Civil War, Congress passed the 14th Amendment to effectively provide citizenship rights for Black men and women and voting rights for adult Black men. The Virginia General Assembly failed to ratify this amendment as required by Congress under the Reconstruction Act of 1867, so Virginia was placed under federal military rule. The Act also obligated states of the former Confederacy to call conventions to write new state constitutions.

On October 22, 1867, more than 93,000 Black men voted in Virginia for the first time and their participation significantly shaped the state's Reconstruction-era politics. Voters were asked to vote for or against holding a constitutional convention and to choose delegates for the convention if it was held. Officers of the U.S. Army oversaw the registration of voters and supervised the election in each county, where they recorded the names of the white and black voters in separate poll books. In Lancaster County, 472 Black men voted.

According to EncyclopediaVirginia.org: "African Americans actually cast more votes than white men by a substantial margin. In most cities and counties white men voted overwhelmingly against holding the convention at all, and Black men voted overwhelmingly in favor. Moreover, almost all Black men voted for candidates who favored making significant reforms to the old state constitution, while most white voters opposed those candidates. As a result, men who supported radical reform won a majority of seats in the convention."

The Lancaster List:

The following list compiles the voter lists from all 4 districts into one searchable PDF. The 472 names are listed alphabetically by surname and use the original spellings taken from the records. The "all caps" format, however, is a modern change. Information in brackets [] is editorial added by the LVHS transcriber. Full names are indicated where common abbreviations were used. A question mark indicates that the transcriber was uncertain about her deciphering of the handwriting or about the accuracy of the information as originally recorded. This LVHS transcriber has made her own close examination of the original images, aided by knowledge of local names and occasional cross-references with the 1870 Census for Lancaster County. Therefore, some entries in this compilation differ slightly from the transcriptions that the Library of Virginia offers for each poll book.
